> DATE OF THE USE OF OPIUM IN CHINA.

The Roy. John Ross, of Newchwang, writes to the N. C. Daily Nows as follows :-- The other day I came across a note which may be worthy the attention of the talented gentlemen who used and grown opium. Mr. Wang, a mandarin of the fourth grade when a boy, was cent by his father, then a maudarin of the same rank, to two mandaries in the city of Monkden for opium sufficient for one smoke." After donning his best garments and calling in his cart he received from each a bowl of water in which a little opium was diluted. For these he paid 50 times (ten to the tasi). The quantity was insufficient to satisfy the craving, so that he had to go to another and spend nearly as much more before his father was made-happy. Buying wholesale, the cost was then 120 times por Chinese oz. It was officially prohibited, death being the penalty decreed against the seller. It could therefore be sold only to the must intimate friend, and only after much trouble, and never directly. The man smoking t had to employ a brother or near relation who could be trusted to purchase without informing. This relation would visit an acquaintance andposed to possess opinm and ask for a certain quantity, the acquaintance would indignontly deny the possession of so illegal an article, but upon constraint would accept the money and promise to procure it from a friend, if possible. Often a man supposed to sell it gave melted brown sugar instead of opium, as the colour and reaciev consistence were alike. The purchaser had no remedy, for he dared not accuse the man or expose the trick.

few years later the price went down to 100, then gradually to 50 times per oz., and when the identsin Treaty threw open Newchwang it fell to below 5 tians per os. In the days of old, said the old mandarin regretfully, opium was far more fragrant, its fumes finding their way to the street from the remotest back corner of the premises, so that it was difficult to hide its consumption. This smell was at first sickening, but gradually became pleasing; and then a man could begin to smoke. Yes, he knew of wealthy families not a few reduced to beggary. There was the wealthy magnate, Yi, who, fifty years ago, smoked his opium pipe. His sons continued the practice till the family patrimony disappeared, and no mem-In this Manchuria, among whose mountains such quantities of opium are grown to-day, not

The Straits Times has been tovered by Conouer F. A. Brine, R.A., with the following account of his late adventurous journey overland from the Bay of Bengal to the Gulf of Siam, which we are sure will prove of the atmost interest to our readers :-

" As you wish it, I have very great pleasure | China Sugar Refining Company, Limited-$209 furnishing you with a short account of my overland trip from Tavoy to Bangkok. The month of the Tavoy river can be very easily cached, as the British India steamers anchor there, and this mouth has been mentioned like other tropical estuaries in connexion with musical fish." The sounds are always heard from under the ships' bottoms, and it would not surprise me if they were barnacles. steam launch, if the tide suits, takes you up to Tavoy, a matter of 40 miles, in our hours, the town with wooden me rice and saw mills, and the usual complement of small Indian or British Burmah officials. being on the left bank. In Tuvoy itself the roads are not bad, but there are no charries to be bired, and to provide for the wants of the few Europeans and their families, there are two fair stores kept by Chinamen. After calling at the post and telegraph offices, I walked to the Circuit or rest-house, where I arrived at 3 in the afternoon of the 15th of last January, a bullock cart bringing up my baggage and Madras servant. Fortunately for me, the Deputy Commissioner, Mr. C. Duke, happened to be driving out, and taking me in the distance for a Police Officer, at once called. On his hearing my business and learning who I was, he immediately drove me off to a Bungalow where a Forest and a Public Works Officer lived, to see a young Telegraph Engineer who had arrived that morning and was going to return that afternoon to the River Tennaserim. After some persussion he got Mr. Mathews to wait till daylight next morning, when we drove off to purchase stores, get Rapess, &c. After dining with the Duke, be not only packed up the stores, but Mr. Duke, to make certain I should not lose my opportunity, wound up my watch. Next morning at halfpast six, Mathews and I left on lent ponies, folowed by a bullock cart, and at eight reached Thullia," a distance of 5 to 6 miles. From this telegraph store we started at 9, with 8 loaded Government elephants, returning the ponies and eart. Till 10 there was a fair road. but in half-an-hour more all signs of road, and small wooden bridges, which the slephants did not like, onded, and we entered a dease jungle. At 11 we crossed the river "Pa-ga-yaya," and after passing the last Pagoda, seeing some white lilies and jungle fowl, and meeting a few Karens on elephants, we at 1.15 reached the Government rest-house of "Loukekonn where we stayed for the night-a distance some say of 17 miles from Tavoy, but tors, with some bired and contractor's elephants. came in. He had virtually deserted his post and nothing would induce him to return. His excuse for resigning, as he turned it, was a young sick wife at Tavoy, and Mathews told me that 170 of his coolies had also bolted on account of sickness and not liking the jungle life. This telegraph line from Tavoy to Bangkok is being laid at the instigation of our Fereiga Office, and in anticipation of my journey the wire is already fixed on to posts for 30 miles, or a traveller would say 50, but the labour of outling and burning a space 40ft broad through a dense jungle of large trees and bamboos is very great. Next morning at 6.35 we were off again, and by 6.40
